

Current building regulations never consider the potential danger coming from explosions, countermeasures even the most simple are therefore generally never implemented in new constructions.

In Italy, as well as in many Country, does not exist any regulation, operational code or list of technical suggestion in order to increase the level of protection of buildings and infrastructures in relation to terrorist attacks with explosives.